Program Title: Minor in Recreational Therapy
School Offering Program: School of Health and Human Performance

Catalog Description: The Recreational Therapy Minor provides students with an introduction to the field of therapeutic recreation (TR). Students will learn about the role of TR in supporting the enhancement and maintenance of a healthy lifestyle and improved quality of life in clinical and community settings for individuals with disabilities and marginalized groups. Students will be able to apply this specialized knowledge and expertise to their major discipline of study and thus increase their employment opportunities.

Program Objectives:

1. Prepare students for competent entry level practice in the Recreational Therapy profession based on an understanding of key theories, concepts and skills that guide professional practice.
2. Prepare students to successfully meet the course requirements for the alternate route eligibility requirements to sit for the national certification exam and meet national pass rates.
3. Provide students with the basic knowledge of the standards of practice, scope of services, and competency standards for Recreational Therapy practitioners.
4. Provide an inclusive learning environment committed to guaranteeing student success that gives access to all capable students.

Students with a Minor in RT are required to complete 18 credits for the minor.

Foundational Core: Four Core courses (12 credit hours) and two additional courses from designated electives (6 hours) will be required for completion of the minor program.

The minor requires that students must maintain a grade of 'C' or better in all courses taken for the minor. No class substitutions will be approved.
