Canvas Announcement

Kean faculty and staff,

Faculty who have taught in the past academic year as well as those assigned to teach in the Fall now have access to Canvas via their University-issued login credentials.

Each faculty member has been provided a sandbox course in which they are the instructor. The sandbox courses are easy to identify in Canvas. They can be found in your dashboard and will use the following naming convention: "First Name Last Name sandbox."

To access the Canvas environment click here.

Canvas Fall 2022 Early Access Application

OCIS is offering early access to teach courses through Canvas during the Fall 2022 term, which will replace Blackboard in Fall 2023.

To request a Canvas shell for your Fall 2022 course(s), fill out the Canvas Fall 2022 Early Access Application (google.com)

All faculty will be provided access to a Canvas sandbox test course for personal use. This form is only for faculty who would like to teach their Fall 2022 course on Canvas. If you would like to apply to offer your course during the Fall 2022 term, please file the form above.

Courses submitted via this form will be created in Canvas only, not in Blackboard. You will be notified once your course is available.

For more information on how to copy your course into Canvas, visit the Help Desk website.

Canvas Faculty Training Available

Faculty will be enrolled as a student in an extensive Canvas training program developed by San Diego State University, which aligns with the research on effective teaching integrating an LMS. You can take advantage of the many training modules, step-by-step tutorials and videos.

Please let us know if you have any questions.